Our philosophy

We recognise that many templated systems risk becoming 'tick-box' exercises. So we have designed our platform to make people think about the implications of the data processing activities they are performing, in order to develop a truly beneficial privacy framework.

With this in mind we have developed a philosophy that we feel embodies the correct approach to data privacy. It reflects the intent of privacy laws and Regulations, provides a guiding principle for organisations and respects the needs of the Data Subjects.

Gather – limit what you gather in line with your processing requirements and understand your lawful grounds for processing.

Inform – communicate what will happen with data to data subjects, internal parties and external parties using privacy notices, agreements and training programs.

Respect – demonstrate a data subject focussed approach. Understand their rights, don't keep data any longer than necessary and handle data with respect.

Protect – organisations have an obligation to protect personal data under their control, understand the risks and ensure that security measures are applied.

The Compliance Pro platform enables a complete overview of personal data processed by the organisation. It brings together all your compliance information into one simple to use application. More than compliance, our platform also forms the foundation of a robust Data Privacy Framework.

All documents and information are stored in the platform's secure cloud-based environment. These can then be accessed by designated users, with defined permissions, allowing them to manage and update as required.

Our easy to follow, step-by-step process guides users through a range of compliance objectives. It provides guidance notes at each stage as well as a range of carefully designed tools to address Risk, Security and Task Management.
